MONEY 'SATISFACTORY'

A firm advertising its product once stated: "Money returned if not satisfactory."

Someone applied for the return of his money, and the reply he received was: "Your money is satisfactory and therefore we decline to return it."

Harry S. Davidson

By LEONEL C. PANOSH

Harry Standish Davidson, son of a Presbyterian minister, was born at Blantyre, Ontario, Canada, April 14. 1894. His parents were the late Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Davidson. He spent his early life in Shoal Lake, Manitoba, Canada, and attended the public schools in that city.

Upon graduation from high school, he took a position with the Union Bank of Canada, but the promising banking career was interrupted by World War I. Harry spent the next four years in France with the Canadian Field and Siege Artillery. On his return from France, he resumed his career at the bank, but in 1923 he decided that the United States offered more opportunities for a young man with his talents and came to Los Angeles to take a position with the California Bank. That he was justified in his decision is proved by the fact that he still is connected with the bank in an executive capacity.

In 1924 he met and married Maud O'Neill MacMillen, and to this fortuitous circumstance he owes his interest in numismatics. To quote his own words: "My wife was the first collector. She collected a gallon of pennies and hounded me for months to wrap them for her. One rainy day I consented to do so, and for no good reason began setting them out by dates. When I found that there were still blank spaces, I couldn't resist the temptation to try to complete the series. From that day on, I have been trying to fill blank spaces in all sorts of types and series."

This happened in 1941 and Harry has been active in numismatics ever since. He became a member of the American Numismatic Association in 1944, holding membership No. 10688. He was a charter member of the Bay Cities Coin Club in Santa Monica and holds membership also in the Los Angeles Coin Club, Orange County Coin Club and the San Diego Numismatic Society. He was one of the early members of the California State Numismatic Association, becoming a member in 1948. He and Mrs. Davidson have attended every convention since then.

Harry served as president of the Bay Cities Coin Club in 1948 and headed the Orange County Coin Club in 1954. He currently is vice-president of the California State Numismatic Association.

ENGINEERS HONOR BOWERS

Dr. Nathan A. Bowers, past president of the CSNA, was presented an award by "The Beavers", engineers' heavy construction organization, Jan. 27. The banquet meeting, held at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, was attended by some 800 persons.

United States Patterns

By A. KOSOFF, Encino

Every numismatist has one or more favorite series. I have derived much satisfaction from many experiences in my 27 years of professional numismatic operation, among them experiences involving certain series that caused me to class these coins among my favorites.

I suppose that my contact with the William H. Woodin estate, dating back to 1940, had a lot to do with making patterns one of my favorites. I'm sure my friendly associations with such men as Dr. J. H. Judd, Max M. Schwartz, Martin Kortjohn, F. C. C. Boyd, Adolph Friedman and other pattern collectors back in the early '40s added warmth to my pattern experiences. The acquisition of what was undoubtedly the finest collection of United States patterns in 1945 certainly made a hot pattern enthusiast out of me.

My many sales to King Farouk and finally the trip to Cairo to repurchase many of the rarities—these certainly were to influence my burning zeal. I hope the feeling is contagious so that you can share the fun and enjoyment I have derived from fondling and studying United States patterns.

The word "pattern" is from the same root as "patron" (Latin pater — father). As a patron ought to be an example, so pattern has come to signify a model. For our purpose, then, a pattern is a "coin" for which a design was proposed but not adopted.

The series of patterns actually covers trial pieces and experimental pieces as well. We know that the pattern itself was proposed but not adopted. The trial piece was proposed and the design was adopted. The "coin," however, was struck in a metal other than that used in the regular series, i.e., a half dollar struck in copper with the design used on the silver coin of that type.

The experimental pieces include those which by their very nature represent a radical change from the standard. Often the experiment was dropped, as with the gold dollar of 1836 or the 2-cent piece of the same year. Other times saw a modification of the experimental piece to bring it into closer conformity with more customary and acceptable standards. A good example is the TEN CENTS of 1868, designed after the large cent.

Our three terms, then, are patterns (proposed, not adopted), trial pieces (adopted, struck in different metal), and experimental pieces (radical changes).

Confusion exists as to whether or not certain "coins" are really coins. The 1792 half disme, the Gobrecht dollar of 1836, the 1856 flying eagle cent, the $4 gold piece of 1879 — these coins particularly are questioned. The yardstick is firm — legislation governs our coinage and substantiates the legality of our mint products as legal tender where it was intended that these products be used as money. Otherwise, they are not coins. Of course, common acceptance by collectors may make of them "numismatic coins" but actually they are not "legal coins."

Confusion set in at an early date. In 1789 our discussions turned to coinage but it was not until 1792 that presses were acquired and put into operation. In 1792 our mint produced half-dismes, dismes, and cents, as well as a half eagle in copper. The half disme and disme were struck in silver as well as copper. The cents included the "silver centered" one wherein a plug of silver was inserted to bring the intrinsic value of the coin up to par. Another variety omitted the center plug. The Birch cent also was minted in 1792, as was the half eagle, sometimes referred to as the Eagle Cent of 1792, (there being an eagle on a globe on the reverse.

President Washington, in an address to Congress on Nov. 16, 1792, stated, "There has been a small beginning in the coinage of half dimes (half disme) . . . " This is the basis for the contention that the half disme is a coin, not a pattern. If this were true then conceivably all of the 1792 patterns could be classified as coins. Now we must apply the yardstick — legislation making the mint issues acceptable as legal tender had not yet been passed; these products are not coins. The same is true of the Gobrecht dollar, the 1856 cent, the Stella — these are not "legal coins," although by the grace of Wayte Raymond, who provided suitable openings in his coin pages, these have become acceptable as "numismatic coins." Actually, all are patterns.

I emphasize this point because many of you (if you are still with me) realize for the first time that you are pattern collectors! And since you have been exposed to this fascinating series and now know it, perhaps you can be induced to pursue it further. I have been uncommonly successful in converting or diverting collectors to this series. I have the bewitching eye focused on you.

Let us return for a moment to the disme and half disme of 1792. You who collect dimes and half dimes, would not the acquisition of such an historical item enhance the value and enjoyment you derive from your specialty? Indeed it would.

Here perhaps is our first coin (according to Washington's statement) struck on the silver plate out of Washington's own home. Even the head is supposed to be that of Martha Washington. Historic? Indeed it is.

Now then, we have added the dime or half dime) to our series (which up until then had the early designs such as the small eagle reverse, then the large eagle reverse and so on. Along about 1885 we got a bit tired of the Liberty Seated dime, which had appeared year after year with very little change, since 1838. We were happy when Barber designed a new dime in 1892, but why did they have to keep the same thing until 1916? Then more monotony from 1916 until 1946 when the Roosevelt dime was designed. One hundred and fifty years of dimes with so few changes!

Now we have added the disme, and it adds lustre to this series. When was another new dime proposed? Let's go out and get one. In 1859 we have the well-known Transitional Pattern, another "numismatic coin" listed in the Standard Catalogue and Whitman's Guide Book. Dime collectors already own one or have it on their want lists (they, too, are pattern collectors, you see).

History creeps into the dime series when in 1863 a design (see AW 381), obviously intended to strengthen the government's printing of postage currency, was proposed. Those of you who collect fractional currency are familiar with these small notes in denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, later augmented by the 3- and 15-cent releases. Remember, we were in the Civil War and metal was scarce; hence the use of postage (remember the encased postage stamps) and paper money.

Reference to Adams-Woodin (AW) book indicates that this "dime" of 1863 was struck in aluminum, silver, copper, tin and brass. (See AW 381, etc.) Let's buy a cheap one. AW 384 in silver-copper sells for about $12.50. This is a common one — 27 pieces were struck. "Twenty-seven pieces?" you query, "—that's common? I paid $15 for the regular proof dime and about 500 of these were struck!"

Now you are getting the point. Supply and demand — and the demand for patterns is growing. The supply, now more than adequate, will grow shorter and shorter. It doesn't take long to absorb this common issue — 27 coins.

What next? — 1864 regular dies in nickel, copper, or aluminum (AW 445, 6, 7). An interesting sidelight. How about that TEN CENTS experimental piece of 1868? Well, it's the size of the old large cent and has the same style Liberty Head. The reverse is the same, too, except for TEN CENTS within the wreath. It was struck in nickel, copper and aluminum (AW 669-670-671).

Along in 1869 and 1870 a number of "dimes" were designed. Three different Liberty Heads were suggested, as well as two different reverses. These were struck in silver, copper or aluminum. Some had plain edges, others were reeded. Suppose we pick up a few. Let's say a silver plain edge, another in copper with reeded edge, and perhaps a third design in aluminum. These should cost an average of $12 to $15 each. In 1869 a further design had the usual Liberty Seated but the reverse was quite different, SIL. (ver) .9 NIC (kel) .1 (AW 792-3-4. See also AW 795, 6 for a variety).

Various mulings of Longacre designs as well as new ones by Morgan and Barber enter into the picture. The famous Washlady design of 1879 (AW 1624, 1625) is an ever-popular addition to a dime series.

I take this occasion to note the existence of a pattern dime of 1916 of the Mercury type. Various differences exist and will be noted in its appropriate place. Very likely this pattern is unique.

Obviously I cannot go into each series as thoroughly as I have covered dimes. If you specialize in cents, there are the silver-centered cent, the Birch cent, the eagle cent of 1792, the perforated cent of 1850 (AW 112), etc. In 1853 a cent was designed that looked like a quarter eagle. Pick one up in copper, bronze, nickel, etc. as low as $15. In 1854 the large cent was on its way out. A design similar to the regular large cent but smaller — about quarter size — was proposed. Another design replaced the Liberty Head with a flying eagle. Both of these dated 1854 make an interesting pair, representing the transition between the large cent with the Liberty Head and the small, flying eagle, cent.

Now we come to the 1856 cent — not a cent at all because the series was not authorized until 1857. Not only is the 1856 "cent" not a coin — as a pattern it is a Rarity 1 in a scale from 1 to 15. Rarity 1 is the most common of all patterns. Yet this common pattern is selling for $400 and rare patterns go a-begging!

Eighteen fifty-six witnessed several other pattern varieties of cents, and 1858 offered several others. Different eagles, different wreaths, Indian heads — these were the main designs.

You know how scarce an 1864 cent with L on ribbon can be? How scarce would you imagine an 1863 cent with L on ribbon might be? Rarer indeed, but a lot cheaper! How about a copper-nickel cent of 1865? (These were discontinued in 1864.)

For variety, a cent designed after the 3 cents nickel coin appeared in 1868 and was repeated in 1869 (AW 820, about $15). Another similar type was struck in 1881, and in 1884 a cent with a perforated center was proposed (AW 1704,5,6), as was a more polished attempt in 1885 (AW 1723). The last of the cent patterns appeared in 1896 (AW 1737,8).

If you collect silver dollars you will be fascinated by the 1795 dollar in copper struck on a large cent planchet (AW 18, unique), the various Gobrecht pieces, the Commercial Dollar, the Trade Dollar, the Metric Dollar, the Goloid Dollar — Longacre's designs, Barber's designs, Morgan's designs, the beautiful Schoolgirl Dollar, the classic Liberty heads — you have a treat in store.

I'm certain your editor is now sorry he asked for this paper — I'll flatter myself that it is only the space he is considering. Let me, then, simply mention a few interesting highlights that make the pattern series so fascinating.

- In 1814 a platinum half dollar was minted of the regular dies. This is the only time platinum was used at the U. S. mints. The half eagles of 1844, 1869, etc., are forgeries — not mint products.
- In 1818 the obverse of the quarter die and reverse of the large cent die were muled on a regular quarter.
- The rare 1827 quarter exists in copper; three specimens are known.
- The 1836, 1838 and 1839 Gobrecht dollars also were struck in copper.
- The first gold dollar was proposed in 1836. It was struck in gold, silver, and copper. You will recall this series was not adopted until 1849 and the design was entirely different from that proposed in 1836. The famous ring dollar with center perforation made its appearance in 1852.
- The same year, 1836, a 2-cent piece was suggested, this being the first time this denomination had received any attention. It was not until 1863 that the 2-cent piece was considered. The new design had the head of George Washington. Another design finally was adopted for the series which commenced in 1864. Interesting, too, is that fact that our motto, "IN GOD WE TRUST," appears for the first time in our coinage history with the introduction of the 2-cent piece. Also considered was the motto "GOD AND OUR COUNTRY."

• The half dollar series offers a great variety of design. I might add that specialists in the half dollar seem most likely to succumb to the suggestion that patterns be included as part of that series.

• The 1849 double eagle is listed by Adams-Woodin but actually this is a coin — only one minted, so forget it. Interesting to note that the Mormons struck a private $20 piece in 1849 before the mint struck the regular issue. Also worthy of note: the original suggestion was to call the coin "Washington" instead of double eagle.

• Three-cent pieces, or trimes, appear in 1849 as patterns and again in 1850. In the latter year the regular series commenced. A 3-cent piece the size of the large cent was proposed in 1863. A Liberty Seated type trime was proposed in 1870 by Barber.

• Anthony Paquet's name appears as a designer in the late 1850's. He is important for it was his reverse design on the double eagle of 1861 which was adopted, authorized, and discarded so quickly that there are only two known specimens of the 1861S coin.

• Dr. Barclay's experiment with the 1860 half eagle offered a concave planchet to prevent the drilling and removal of gold from coins.

• Eighteen sixty-one saw the beginning of emphasis on the patterns and trial pieces for the gold coins series. This continued for several years.

• In 1865,6,7 the designs for the new nickel included a Washington head, Lincoln head, Liberty head, shield, etc.

• International Coinage Patterns were introduced in 1868. A Paquet design offered a 5 DOLLARS, 25 FRANCS. Similar coins were struck in France and Austria. The historical aspect is worthy of your attention. In 1874 a $10 piece was struck with six equivalents in foreign currencies inscribed on the reverse. It is interesting, too, to recognize that our Stella, or $4 gold piece, was an attempt to reconcile our standard with that of the Latin monetary unit used by many nations in Europe and South America.

• The varieties of 1869 and 1870 mentioned during the consideration of the dimes exist in the quarter, half dollar and half dime series of those years.

• The pressure of nickel interests had a lot to do with the introduction of the 3-cent nickel and 5-cent nickel coinage in 1865 and 1866. Silver coins of each denomination already were part of our coinage system.

• The commercial need for something approaching the trade dollar became evident in 1871 and the designs introduce the words COMMERCIAL and TRADE.

• Barber's Amazonian design of 1872 was used on the dollar, half dollar and quarter.

• The varieties of 1873 trade dollars represent a venture receiving attention from collectors.

• The 20-cent piece, to become a regular coin in 1875, appears as a pattern in 1874 and considerable variety exists. Here, too, is a one-series collection possibility extending through 1875.

• 1877 was a great year for patterns. The round $50 gold piece was proposed (AW 1498-1501). Half dollars of this year produce a number of interesting varieties.

• 1879 saw the Stella and quintuple Stella proposed.

• The 1882 nickel without CENTS is a popular coin, as are the various 1883 pieces without CENTS, etc.; 1883 nickels provide another one-series collection possibility.

• Several patterns of the 1907 gold coins were prepared by Augustus St. Gaudens; all are very rare. The very high relief double eagle, selling at $5000, is the most common of these rare patterns.

• A nickel with Washington's head was proposed in 1909 and 1910.

• Patterns of 1916 exist in silver. There are perhaps 10 different varieties of the Liberty Walking half dollar; most are unique, although two or three specimens are known of some varieties. To my knowledge there is one dime in silver and one quarter in silver.

ANDREW JACKSON

By DR. C. GLENN CURTIS and BILL TOBITT

Either you think this guy was the greatest — or you hate his guts. Even from here. It depends on your politics, but forget politics. Andrew Jackson, seventh U.S. president (1829-36), is in solid as a coin collector's conversation piece.

As any good numismaniac knows, if it weren't for Andy we probably wouldn't be swapping Hard Times Tokens and making a fast buck or two on the turnover.

When Old Hickory moved in on the White House and environs he started an eight-year hoedown that's still shaking the rafters. Andy's fiddlin' with power politics had many a banker joining in on the chorus, using only the G-string Andy's nip-ups had left him.

LOW No. 4

Nobody scared this curmudgeonous old Indian fighter. He was honest. He was as stubborn as a mule. And he had a cockeyed idea that the common people like himself oughta' run things their own way. Lawyer, soldier, politician — whatever he did, he did it his way and to hell with authority.

Andy showed his muscles right after taking over the White House in '29. He kicked out 690 federal office-holders and filled their jobs with his own boys, thus paying off political debts and introducing the spoils system on a big-time basis. Only 74 feds had been bounced by all six previous prexies.

And he soon showed he wasn't even going to let women push him around. He fired most of his cabinet members because their wives upstaged the one-time Peggy O'Neill, now Mrs. John Henry Eaton, wife of Andy's secretary of war and best pal.

It seems that pretty Peggy and eager Eaton allegedly had played footsie while Peggy had someone else for a husband. Probably the real reason the gals wouldn't be nice, though, was that Peggy's pop owned a pub. This was before they'd heard of such socially proper innkeepers as John Hilton and Dave Schine.

The ruckus also helped split Andy and his first vice-president, John C. Calhoun. Calhoun's wife generalissimoed Washington society and kept hot little Peggy in the social deep freezer despite Old Hickory's cabinet smashing. Mrs. Calhoun finally browbeat the veep into quitting his job to prove her point, although officially he walked out in a huff in '32 when his ideas of state sovereignty got bent out of shape on tough Old Hickory's federalism.

LOW No. 8

In the election year of '32, Andy vetoed the charter of the United States Bank because he figured it was trying to muscle in on his territory. The uproar swept him back into a second term during which he completed the ruin of the bank and paid off the national debt. Cash got scarce, speculators went nuts and inflation set in.

That was when copper coins carrying caustic cracks about Andy's fiscal fandangos started coming out, to be followed during the panic of '37 by a flood of worthless "credit" coins issued by merchants.

Those indeed were hard times.

But not for Peggy. John landed in Madrid as Minister to Spain in 1836 and during their four-year stay Peggy was the darling of the society duennas.

So there, Mrs. Calhoun.

CHARLES ELMORE GREEN

Charles E. Green, well-known Chicago professional numismatist, died in his sleep Dec. 21.

Charley was born in McGregor, Tex., April 7, 1894. He was married to Ruth Scrivner in 1926, and the two operated a retail coin business in the Chicago loop district for about 18 years under the name "R. Green". The business was moved to Skokie, Ill., last year. Ruth will continue to operate it.

A veteran of World War I, Charley suffered a permanent ankle injury in the Service, a physical handicap which might have blocked the career of a less courageous man.

Charley was a member of the American Numismatic Association, American Numismatic Society, California State Numismatic Association, Central States Numismatic Society and many local numismatic groups. He was a member of the Chicago Coin Club for 23 years. He was active in the DAV, American Legion and Masonic Lodge.

The editor feels a personal loss in the death of Charley Green. While teaching at the University of Wisconsin, he would go to Chicago for visits and an occasional luncheon with Charley and Ruth, and then, with them, attend meetings of the Chicago Coin Club. Charley was a true friend and a wise counselor. With his death, numismatics has lost one of its foremost boosters.

We talked about your collection after you left and I think that you got quite a few of us interested in collecting coins.

Thank you again.

Yours truly,

Orange Co. Coin Club

Meets 4th Wednesday,
8 P.M., at Woman's Clubhouse, Brea

President Winn Osborne presided at the 209th meeting Nov. 23; 97 present.

Kenneth L. Nichols, assisted by his son, Gene, was honored as the Collector of the Month. He had on display the beautiful exhibit of $4 gold Stellas (both coiled and flowing hair); type sets; proof sets and commemoratives. All were contained in plastic holders arranged in a large plastic frame mounted on a silver spread bedecked table, the cynosure of all eyes. Nichols spoke briefly and enthusiastically about his favorite hobby. He now is concentrating on pattern coins, particularly those with metric designs.

Officers for 1956 were elected as follows: Joseph Courreges, president; Charles Colver, vice-president; Herbert Bergen, secretary; William Hogue, treasurer; Dr. C. Glenn Curtis, librarian; and Winn Osborne, Dr. C. L. Emmons, John Stoppelwerth, Charles Boothe and William Jack Davis, directors.

Charles Colver spoke on his favorite subject, "Coins of England". His interest in English coins started while he was recuperating at a hospital in London during World War II. These coins, he said, are both beautiful and bountiful, and not expensive to obtain. They are the most widely circulated coins of any country in the world. In England, tokens also enjoy great popularity as a medium of exchange. Colver had on display a large number of these coins and tokens.

—H. M. Bergen,
Secretary.

The Name Was Inter Ocean

Name of the newspaper mentioned in Bryan Burke's January issue article, "The Neglected Coin", was Inter Ocean, not Index-Ocean. The error was brought to the editor's attention by H. F. Bowker, Oakland.

Successor to the Republican, founded in 1865 with Charles A. Dana as first editor, it took the name Inter Ocean in 1872. Through reporting enterprise, religious and agricultural news and the introduction of mechanical improvements, it built up a midwestern circulation. It installed the first full color press in the country in 1892 and also was the first newspaper to run panel cartoons, drawn by Arthur H. Young. In 1914 it disappeared by merger with the Record-Herald, the new name becoming simply the Herald. Hearst bought the Herald in 1918 and combined it with his Examiner, renaming it the Herald-Examiner.

Proposed Changes in Constitution

Your Board of Directors has approved certain changes in the constitution and by-laws, whereby the office of "Librarian-Curator-Historian" will be split into two offices, namely, "Librarian" and "Curator-Historian". To maintain the present balance between Northern and Southern members of the board, it was further recommended that the office of "Editor-Director" be split into two offices, namely, "Editor" and "Director".

The following proposed amendments will be acted upon at a regular business meeting, to be held during the coming San Jose Convention, April 19-22. If adopted, the effect will be to increase the Board of Directors (to be known in the future as "Executive Board") to 11 members, which should result in greater efficiency and a more equitable representation.

Article 4, Section 1, shall be amended to read as follows:

"The officers of this association shall be President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, Librarian, Historian-Curator, Editor and five Directors, one of whom shall be the immediate Past President."

Article 8, Sections 4 and 5, are hereby repealed and in lieu thereof, the following sections shall be adopted:

"Section 4. LIBRARIAN. The Librarian shall have charge of all books, pamphlets and periodicals which the association may acquire. He shall give access thereto to the members, as prescribed in such library rules as may be in force or hereafter adopted. He shall render reports, as requested.

"Section 5. CURATOR-HISTORIAN. The Curator-Historian shall have charge of all coins, medals and other numismatic items which the association may acquire. He shall keep an historical record of the association and its members and make report thereof.

"Section 6. EDITOR. The Editor shall have full charge of editing and publishing Calcoin News, official publication of the association.

"Section 7. DIRECTORS. The Directors shall attend all meetings called by the President. Each Director shall be a voting member of the Executive Board and shall assist the officers in any way possible.

"Section 8. EXECUTIVE BOARD. The above named officers, President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, Librarian, Curator-Historian, Editor and the five Directors, shall constitute the Executive Board. Each named officer shall have equal voting power in all deliberations of said board."
